PLAGIARISM POLICY

- ZANKHANA International E-Journal is committed to promoting originality, academic integrity, and ethical research practices. All submitted manuscripts must be original and properly acknowledge the sources of ideas, text, data, and other scholarly materials.

- The journal may screen manuscripts using appropriate plagiarism-detection tools. Similarity reports will be evaluated by the editorial team; a similarity percentage alone will not determine whether plagiarism has occurred.

- Plagiarism, improper attribution, data misuse, and duplicate publication are unacceptable. Authors are responsible for accurate citations, appropriate permissions, and compliance with the journal's publication ethics and submission guidelines.

- Manuscripts found to involve plagiarism or serious ethical violations may be returned for correction, rejected, or subjected to appropriate post-publication action, including correction or retraction where necessary.

- By submitting a manuscript, authors confirm that their work meets the journal's originality and publication ethics requirements.
